Second Friday RAAC Talk

Katie Arnold

Friday, Apr 12, 2019, 8pm

Rappahannock County Public Library
4 Library Lane, Washington, VA 22747

Katie Arnold is a contributing editor and former managing editor at "Outside" magazine. Her 2018 essay in the magazine, "Want a Strong Kid? Encourage Play, Not Competition," was nominated for a National Magazine Award in service journalism. She has been awarded prestigious literary fellowships and has been featured on NPR Weekend Edition Sunday.

In addition to "Outside," her stories have appeared in The New York Times, ESPN The Magazine, and several more publications. She has been named runner-up in "The Best American Sports Writing 2008" and nominated for a Western Publishing Association magazine award. Her essays have been anthologized. She is co-author of the blog "Writing From The Nest." She also edited the photography book, "Rio Grande: An Eagle's View."

An elite runner, Katie is the 2018 women's champion of Leadville Trail 100 Run, where she finished 11th overall in the field of more than 700 runners. As part of her ongoing effort to encourage young athletes, she founded a children's trail running club, gives motivational talks, and coaches girl's lacrosse.

Running Home is her first book.

Artists of Rappahannock Studio & Gallery Tour

2019 planning meeting

Sunday, April 28

Prospective and returning Art Tour artists and gallery owners won't want to miss our first-ever participant gathering on April 28 at 4pm at the Washington School, 567 Mt. Salem Ave. It will be both an informative and social event to allow artists to meet the 15th annual Art Tour Planning Committee members and hear about what plans are underway. Committee members are also eager to hear participants' suggestions and answer questions.

Information about the Tour website, FallArtTour.org, and our expanded social media effort will be provided, and artists will learn how they can enhance our promotional efforts. Applications and information sheets with due dates will be distributed to returning artists as well. In addition, appointments will be scheduled for the committee's studio visits for those artists who would be first-time Tour participants. Beverages and snacks will be provided, and we expect that artists will also enjoy the opportunity to socialize with one another.

Returning and prospective artists and gallery owners who are unable to attend this meeting should contact Heather Wicke at hwicke2@gmail.com or call 540-675-3368 to arrange for an email application or a site visit.

Applications are due by June 1.
