

Look & Listen

Greetings Friends!

May hearts and minds be inspired by our Rappahannock artists in the days ahead.

Happy Valentine's Day from all of us at RAAC.

LOOK

Haley Fine Art-The Ben Venue series, new paintings from Chris Stephens, feature scenes of Rappahannock's iconic landmark, Massies Corner. Says Stephens, "my tools are color, rhythmic movement and composition, and that is hardly a match for the power of the natural world." Visit Haley Fine Art, 42 Main Street, Sperryville, VA.

Thornton River Art-Local stained glass artist Patricia Brennan graces the cover of this month's Rappahannock Electric Cooperative Living magazine. Read this in depth article about her and her work, Reflections of Light and Color, here. View Brennan's work and other handcrafted art at Thornton River Art, 36 Main Street, Sperryville, VA.

Ron Paras-Unexpected Light (currently in progress) is a new series made up of images that explore how light defines form, creating drama and emotion. The images focus on unexpected light within landscapes from a variety of sources such as lanterns, laser, security lights, speed lights, sunlight filtered through winter fog, moonlight. See more at Ron Paras Art.

R.H. Ballard Gallery-A wide range of Marc Chagall's original lithographs are now available. Recognized as the foremost color lithographer of the 20th century, Marc Chagall created masterpieces of color and story. "In our life there is a single colour, as on an artist's palette, which provides the meaning of life and art. It is the colour of love." (Marc Chagall) Visit R. H. Ballard Gallery, 307 Main Street, Washington, VA.
